

Success is a science, and the formulas, equations, and pathways for our success are innate within us...found within the cells in each of us

Roger Kenworthy

Chapter II

The White Quadrant: The pathway of awareness

The first steps you take within the White Quadrant marks the beginning of your journey to achieve the success that you want and deserve in this life. As James Allen (1904) wrote, "Most beginnings are small, and appear trivial and insignificant, but in reality they are the most important things in life." Any beginning, small or large, creates the necessary foundation for the future, albeit, the basis of a home or personal success. So it is with each of us, as we place one foot in front of the other, we will discover that the primary function of this quadrant is to create order where chaos exists, and it is from this order that we are able to move forward to our goals. A corollary of order is that our wants and desires are held in escrow until a certain point, and when the tipping point occurs, our desires and wants are funneled into the next quadrant of success.

Natural Laws exist for our benefit

There are certain, immutable laws that were created at the moment the universe was created. These numerous Natural Laws are precise as any mathematical or scientific formula, and if they weren't the universe would cease to function as it does. These laws are unseen, unheard, and untouched by human hands, but that doesn't mean they don't exist, they are always working in set fashions that are unerring and unchanging. We don't need to see them with our eyes to know they are working, rather, we often feel them with our soul that they are acting according to exact and absolute rules. For example, we can't see, hear, smell, taste or touch gravity but we know it exists and acts accordingly when we drop an apple or throw a ball – we know they'll both hit the ground, eventually. We can't see the Law of Cause and Effect, but we can see the result of what we focus our attention upon...our new reality. We can't measure the Law of Attraction, but we can see the results of what thoughts control our mind by what we have in our hand.

The reason why we can benefit from the myriad of Natural Laws is that we are harmonious with them and not disharmonious with them. In Raymond Holliwell's, Working with the Law (2010), he wrote that we simply cannot override, manipulate, or change the Laws that were created from the beginnings of the universe regardless of our wealth, fame, or name. Rather, "as we strive to work with the Law we are living closer to God, and such living brings us better understanding." When we have a clear focus of how we can operate within the Laws (or 'better understanding' of the Laws), we are then able to determine our own destiny. Strive to work with the Laws, for example, if you work with the Law of Thinking and the Law of Success you will soon discover the pathways to a new life that you deserve and expect from our benevolent Creator.

Regardless of what quadrant your dreams and desires inhabit at a particular moment, once you know how the laws work in your favor, you can apply them accordingly and then receive what you want in life. It all starts with awareness, and when we are aware there is no mystery when it comes to the unerring Natural Laws that govern our universe and our world.

Our ideas are held in escrow

The sacred moment of creation manifested the original primordial, untainted energy; as a result, the universe created all from nothing into all of everything. Since we are created from the same original, untainted energy, stored within each of us is 'the everything.' This idea can be reported because scientists find that energy can neither be created nor destroyed. If everything exists within us, we have equal opportunities to achieve our goals no matter our gender, location, age, or aptitude. However, while all things, ideas, and objects manifested on the spiritual plane of existence permeate our deepest souls and hence our cells, nevertheless, they are held in escrow, all haphazard, disarranged, unorganized, scattered about, with no pattern. We can change the disarray that exists within our being by our awareness, when we are aware the result is order, and when we have order we can achieve what we set our minds on.

Each of us holds success or failure within us, and it is our thoughts which create order from chaos in the White Quadrant that manifests our results on the physical plane. The problem that holds our thoughts in a chaotic state and therefore an unresolved state is our thinking and our thinking only. Over 2,000 years ago, the Buddha said, “We are formed and molded by our thoughts.” If we fast forward to the twentieth century, we find this same basic principle is relevant in today’s world. Mahatma Gandhi observed that “Your beliefs become your thoughts. Your thoughts become your words. Your words become your actions.” Trine (2007) concurs that our thoughts are the way to achieve success when he wrote “Every thought of yours has a literal value to you in every possible way. The strength of your body, the strength of your mind, the success in business...depends on the nature of your thoughts.” If we become what we think about, then we must be wary of what thoughts we hold within our mind.

Science has shown that energy is neither created nor destroyed and that this same energy permeates every nook and cranny within our immense universe. Since everything, small and large, that inhabits the universe is made of energy, then the thoughts we hold in our minds are made of energy. It’s also known that like energy attracts like energy and unlike energy repels unlike energy. When we finally realize that we hold every imaginable result deep within our cells and it our own thoughts that deliver the results that we strive for in this life, this is an empowering and enviable position to be in.

Create order from chaos

Our thoughts reflect our past, present, and future; however, our focus must also parallel our thoughts to achieve success. The universe maintains itself based upon order; chaos would soon end our world and every world within the universe. Scientists have estimated that if the universe slowed a nanosecond, it would implode upon itself, and if the universe sped up a nanosecond, it would explode. The pull of gravity maintains just the right distance between the planets. Order creates permanence. And so it is with humanity; we need order to maintain life, and it is our thoughts that help us to exist. But the problem is our thoughts are all over the place. If you doubt this, sit silently for five minutes and see how many different things you think about. You’ll soon realize that you need to make that mortgage payment; complete a report that’s two days late; and buy a new computer since your old one just died. Our mind is constantly fighting chaos as we think about this problem for a second and then the next one followed by another one after that. With so many things bouncing around in our minds, we face chaos on a regular basis.

How do we ensure that our scattered ideas will become organized ideas...it's our focus that creates order from chaos. Each of us knows that there are many distractions in life to cause us to focus upon one thought for a second and then another the next. As such, we must learn to focus our mind upon a set thought for much longer in order to achieve order from chaos. As we make every effort to focus upon what we desire or what possibilities exist in our mind, our ability to do so improves. As our ability to focus for longer periods of time upon our goals, we find ourselves overlooking the distractions that present themselves to us. The distractions become weaker in our minds and our goals become stronger in our minds...it is a cycle that feeds upon itself over time.

Along with universal order comes universal timelessness. In order to achieve focus we require time, time that may be longer or shorter depending upon the individual. Just the right amount of time that is required to organize our ideas is deep within our cells, it always was and it always will be. The universe operates on cosmic timelessness where the past, present, and future are one; hence, while all things that are needed for you to complete your wants are present in the spiritual and physical world, it takes the different parts to be brought into focus and then harmonize as one. Take the example of a gardener; if she plants seedlings one minute and then digs them up and replaces them by a new species of flowers the next moment, surely her eyes will never enjoy the vivid colors of these plants. If you want to be an author now, and then change your mind in a day, how will the world ever benefit from your words if they are never allowed to manifest on the pages of your book? There is simply no time for the universe to bring your knowledge and experience to the table and create your ideal future when you lack focus. If you think for a moment that you want a certain goal and then the next minute change to something new, how can you possibly take steps to create your future with this lack of focus?